

The Greek Cypriot administration turned into PKK clowns: Tatar

Speaking at an event in Girne on June 19 Turkish Cypriot President Ersin Tatar criticized the activities by the Greek Cypriot administration.

“Although the Greek Cypriots talk about peace and neighborly relations, they continue their discontent and immoral activities against Türkiye,” he said.

Tatar strongly condemned the participation of the Greek Cypriot journalist Lazarov Mavros, a PKK sympathizer, whose name was found on the fake passport that the Greek Cypriot administration gave to the PKK terrorist leader Abdullah Öcalan before he was caught, in the Greek army.

“They are clowns by the PKK,” Tatar said.

“In addition to the priests’ participation in the military exercises by holding guns in the Greek Cypriot part, we have seen the person, whose name was on the fake passport given to Abdullah Öcalan, holding a gun during the military exercise,” he said.

“What they are doing is inhuman, immoral, and PKK buffoonery,” he added.

He also commented on the activities of Greece against Türkiye.

“Greece believes that it will besiege Anatolia by arming the Aegean islands and spreading its activities to the Eastern Mediterranean, but this will never happen,” he said.

According to a written statement by the TRNC Presidency, Turkish Cypriot President Ersin Tatar invited the British Prince Edward and his wife Sophia for a social meeting, expected to come to the Greek Cypriot administration today.

It was noted that both Tatar and Prince Edward were graduates of Cambridge University in the invitation sent to the British embassy under the Greek administration, and it was stated that an informal visit would be beneficial. However, the invitation was declined.
